Understand the scientific support behind the SonoFit ear health formula.

The Himalayan Institute of Medical Sciences has found out that hearing problems trigger due to the ingestion of ototoxins (toxic ingredients in drugs) unfortunately found in some drugs prescribed for other diseases by physicians. This may cause inflammation in the body's immune system resulting in the eardrum losing its elasticity.

Mullein is an active ingredient in SonoFit and lab studies conducted by the US National Library of Medicine have shown that its leaves have antibacterial properties in both gram-positive and gram-negative bacteria. The study conducted by NIH also points out that there could be a slight probability that Echinacea, another ingredient in the supplement could improve cold however more studies need to be done in this regard.

SonoFit could be a possible relief as it is made without the use of Genetically Modified Organisms (GMOs) in FDA-registered facilities in the United States with purely natural ingredients.

Introduction to SonoFit ingredients: Do they really work?

SonoFit is prepared using proprietary formulas derived from years of research and scientific study using natural oil and herbal plant extracts. Based on many SonoFit reviews from authentic sources, it is found that ingredients are what make the formula more effective. Listed below are the eight essential ingredients used in the production of SonoFit.

Mullein - Mullein is a flowering plant found in the mountain areas of Europe and Asia. Mullein alone can be a supplement, but it is commonly consumed as a tea, brewed from parts of the plant mixed with hot water to extract some of its nutrients and benefits. It has proved remedial to ailments such as cough, asthma, and various other allergies. Lately, it has been found to help treat irritation and eardrum hydration.

Garlic Oil - Garlic Oil as the name hints is derived from garlic and is an important ingredient in preparing medicines worldwide. Garlic is used to treat blood vessels disease known as atherosclerosis and high blood pressure. It has proved beneficial in flushing out toxins from the body. It is also useful in treating earaches and can balance vertigo symptoms.

Olive Oil - Olive oil has medicinal properties which makes them one of the most sought natural ingredients in the composition of medicines. Olive oil is most commonly used in cooking food but studies have shown that Olive oil can also reduce diabetes and can be effective against various kinds of cancer. It protects the eardrum and is also known to clear ear wax accumulated in the ears.

Lavender Oil - Lavender oil is developed from certain species of Lavender plants and is the most widely used component in preparing medications. It is also widely used against anxiety, depression, stress, insomnia, pain, and many other health issues. It is packed with anti-inflammatory properties and helps ear pain. Lavender oil is also a natural painkiller.

Tea Tree Oil - Tea tree oil is made by steaming the leaves of the Australian tea tree which is indeed an essential oil and has antibacterial properties. It acts as a natural bandage with its calm and soothing effect and heals wounds quickly. Tea tree oil is also used in treating dandruff, bad breath, and other minor ailments. Echinacea - Echinacea is a medicinal plant that falls under the category of the most widely used herbs in the US. It is rich in antioxidants and prevents ear infections and also flushes out ototoxins and rejuvenates the body. Echinacea seems to cure the common cold and other infections though there is no concrete evidence in this regard. Pumpkin Seed Oil - Pumpkin seed oil is a known ingredient that has proved to be rich in antioxidants and comes with Omega-3 acids. Pumpkin seed oil is a good source of polyunsaturated and monounsaturated fats that can improve blood cholesterol levels and decrease heart disease. It is used to fight hearing loss and has calm and nourishing properties which makes it the right component in the preparation of this medicine. DL-Alpha Tocopherol - DL Alpha Tocopherol is a rare vitamin E component that helps reduce inflammation and restore ear functions. It is also beneficial in hydrating the eardrum for a clear auditory function. Vitamin E is an antioxidant and is required for the proper function of most organs in the body.

What is the working principle of SonoFit in treating the root cause of hearing loss?

The scientists at the Himalayan Institute of Medical Sciences conducted a study and found out that hearing loss occurs when the eardrum loses its elasticity due to inflammation triggered by the body's immune system when it is exposed to a new threat. Ototoxins could be detrimental to auditory function and promote hearing loss.
